International Conference

Fr, Dec., 6th — 19 - 21 — c-base e.V. — Rungestraße 20, 10179 Berlin

Sa, Dec., 7th — 10 - 19 — mindpirates e.V. — Schlesische Str. 38, 10997 Berlin

Introduction

«Whatever happened to privacy?» brings together international activists on focal topics and combines work sessions and round tables with a classic public event. The conference will focus on issues which has far reaching consequences for politically active people across the world – the issues of privacy, surveillance and control. The revelations around the NSA and GCHQ digital surveillance activities have spurred political debate. This debate will be intensified at «Whatever happened to privacy?», formulating political demands, developing action strategies and debating questions such as:

What cultural and political value does privacy have today?
 What are the societal implications of the wide spread «I have nothing to hide» attitude?

What political actions are necessary to protect citizens from mass surveillance and what tools exist for people to secure their communications, movements and lives?

WHATEVER HAPPENED...

Part of our two days conference «Whatever happened to privacy?» is organised under the title «Whatever happened to journalism?» by berlinergazette.de in cooperation with the Heinrich Böll Foundation.

In the age of (micro-)blogs and big data, the Fourth Estate is suspended between extremes. Radical fragmentation and monolithic centralization pose multiple threats to democracy. The conference «Whatever happened to journalism?» engages upon a critique of this development and explores alternatives.
